

Example summer hut or hostel trip packing list

We strongly suggest you follow our advice contained in this gear list. We advise against bringing much more than is on this list and we insist that you do not skip corners where possible. Please do not hold back on asking questions on what (not) to bring! Mail us at info@daysontrails.com

Your gear is potentially more important for your well-being than anything else. Please make sure to bring the best you can. It's the basis of your safety and comfort. Visit your local specialist outdoor retailer for face to face advice to fit your needs. We don't recommend making purchases in non-specialized shops.

Administrative

- Credit/debit cards
- ID / pasport
- Cash
- Insurance papers / card
- Phone + charger
- Boarding pass

Basic equipment

- Backpack (35-45l)
- Dry bags for inside your backpack. Rain covers not advised since they don't work well with wind.
- Shoes type B. "Approach" style shoes or trail running shoes might work but talk to us first.
- Gaiters (optional, depends on the trip. Talk to us first)
- Walking poles are recommended
- Two pairs of gloves. It's good to have one waterproof pair.
- Scarf type buff
- Warm hat/cap + spare cap in case one gets wet.
- Sunglasses
- Nalgene bottles (big 1.5l one or two 1l ones). We recommend these because they don't break and can be filled with hot water to use as a flask in your sleeping bag.
- Head torch + spare batteries

Sleeping

- Unless we're sleeping in ho(s)tels that provide linen, a sleeping bag liner to use under the blankets
- Some people like to provide their own pillow sleeve.

Base layer

- Long trekking pants (stretchy and quick drying) – no cotton
- One pair of undies per 2 days
- One pair of good hiking socks per 2 days
- Long underwear, pants and top to use as a dry sleeping layer
- T-shirts or base layer, 2 recommended. Merino is advised.

Warm layer

- Technical mid layer type fleece or synthetic down to use on the move
- Warm jacket type down or synthetic down to keep warm while static

Outer layer

- Hardshell (water- and windproof) jacket + pants. Don't cut corners here! "Water resistant" does not mean waterproof. You need to be 100% certain your shell jacket and pants are waterproof!
- Windproof/breathable layer is also recommended

Toiletries

- Small quick drying towel (unless full hotel based trip)
- Soap (unless full hotel based trip)
- toothbrush + paste
- toilet paper
- Extra's if needed for the ladies among us
- Lipbalm
- Sunscreen

Misc

- Bivy bag (optional)
- Camera
- Battery pack for phone or a book in case you want to "zone out" for a bit.
- Booties or slippers

First aid

- Sporttape, disinfectant, band aids
- Elastic bandage
- Medication for gastrointestinal issues and pain killers type Paracetamol / Ibuprofen
- Space blanket
- Petroleum oil or other thick lube
- Anti-inflammatory cream

Car / hostel package

Make a package with comfortable city clothes that you will want to wear while traveling. We can leave this in a van or in a ho(s)tel. A second pair of shoes might fit well here.
